Minieri Associates Releases White Paper on Security Assessment Deficiencies

Minieri Associates, the global independent professional security consulting and engineering firm, has released a brief White Paper entitled “SECURITY ASSESSMENTS: Key Deficiencies in Common Methodologies”. The document is in PDF format and available for download free of charge.

The paper describes what the author considers to be some significant issues that make many Security Assessment results misleading to stakeholders or result in substantial unnecessary expenditures on security measures. Some of the issues addressed were also contained in a report by the Treasury Inspector General for Tax Administration in an audit of security assessments for hundreds of facilities of the International Revenue Service. This TIGA report cited a variety of deficiencies in a 2012 initiative that targeted over 600 IRS facilities. Minieri also references the results of an expert study of several dozen assessment methodologies that was commissioned by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security.
